

Know the Risk, Reap the Reward

ChinaWise Business Seminar

Seminar Overview

ChinaWise is designed for business executives whose companies are considering export trade with China or setting up operations in China to support exports from the United States. Government officials, as well as corporate and association executives, will share insights and perspectives to help companies minimize risks, while maximizing rewards. The Baltimore-Xiamen Sister City Committee and Maryland China Business Council will host a networking reception following the event to introduce a September 2010 Trade/Business Mission to China.

Why Export to China?

As China is buying, building, and upgrading, the country is rich with business opportunities for U.S. firms. In fact, U.S. companies, including many that are small and medium-sized, export more than $70 billion in goods and services each year. With an exploding middle class and economic growth leading the world, China's demand for products and services spans all industries.
